

Version: 8.0

---

Question: 1

---

Rolheiser's (1996) Self-Assessment Model presents self-judgment and evaluation.

as components of self-

- A. achievement
- B. self-reaction
- C. self-judgment
- D. self-confidence

---

Answer: C

---

---

Question: 2

---

Review the following scenario: You are teaching a Check Point Course, and you pose the following question:

"Explain the path you are going to take in the next six months to implement network security and the factors that will lead you in that direction" Which question type does this question BEST represent?

- A. Closed
- B. Smorgasbord
- C. Probe
- D. Stir

---

Answer: C

---

---

Question: 3

---

Which of the following instructor behaviors would encourage audience involvement and cohesiveness?

- A. Ignore group compliments in favor of your own.
- B. Ask for examples/experience from the group
- C. Encourage learners' to set aside concerns to focus on the learning experience.
- D. Ignore learners' comments as irrelevant.

---

Answer: B

---

---

Question: 4

---

Collaborative group learning can be used to foster transfer of learning because it_____

- A. makes breaks more interesting
- B. reduces the instructor workload
- C. improves post test scores
- D. sets the stage for a reinforcing community of practice

---

Answer: D

---

---

Question: 5

---

During one presentation, a participant poses a policy scenario to which he or she claims are only two options, neither of which you like.

How do you respond to this "two-option" question?

- A. Open up the options - introduce a third that the learner might not have thought of.
- B. Tell the participant to stick to reality
- C. Ignore the question
- D. Ask the participant to provide more detail to the imaginary scenario.

---

Answer: A

---

---

Question: 6

---

When reviewing a learning objective, you want to ensure that the objective possess all of these characteristics EXCEPT which one?

- A. Define a specific behavior
- B. Be measurable
- C. Be philosophical
- D. Be clearly written

---

Answer: A

---

---

Question: 7

---

As an Instructor, the effectiveness with which the learners transfer new skills and knowledge to the work place reflects directly on you. You decide to take a proactive approach to the opportunity and suggest development of a peer coaching element for the program and follow-up activities.

Who would be the best person to do this, and when, according to Mary Broad's strategies to ensure transfer of learning to performance?

- A. Manager, During
- B. Trainer, Before
- C. Stakeholders, During
- D. Co-workers, After

---

Answer: A

---

---

Question: 8

---

According to Thornton (1992) the value of classroom feedback is dependent upon which of the following?

- A. Focused on past failures
- B. Focused examples of negative results included in the reports.
- C. Focusing on documented behaviors, not attitude
- D. Remaining theory oriented

---

Answer: B

---

---

Question: 9

---

Which of these would be the BEST technique to increase learner engagement in the classroom?

- A. Giving students nightly reading assignments
- B. Having students role play job situations
- C. Having students take pop quizzes daily
- D. Asking students to make oral presentations

---

Answer: D

---

---

Question: 10

---

According to Bergevin, which of the following issues would be more applicable to an adult learner than a child?

- A. Most adults must see rather quickly more relevance and immediacy of application.
- B. Adults may see new learning as a way to ease job responsibility and focus
- C. Adults may see new learning as a means to maintain balance and integration they have achieved
- D. Most adults prefer learning that will have a delayed application

---

Answer: C

---